GRADY NEGRO NURSES

THREATEN TO STRIKE

Constitution
When the committee on adjustments of the Grady hospital yesterday gave a dozen negro girls, who had deliberately "walked out" fifteen minutes to return to work, a sudden strike of the negro nurses was avoided, for the offended employees hurried back to their jobs.

It is said that the trouble arose when Janie Stanley, one of the negro nurses, and Charles Barnes, negro orderly, became involved in a quarrel. Janie claimed that she was slapped by the orderly, and she demanded that he be discharged, but Miss A. E. Feebeck, superintendent of the white nurses, only suspended the negro while she investigated the trouble. Janie and Charles were suspended indefinitely.

NEWBERN EMPLOYES A GRADUATE NURSE FOR COLORED PEOPLE.

Two American Presbyterian
Raleigh, Feb. 17.—A graduate colored visiting nurse, who will give her whole time to the health and welfare of the colored people of Newbern, has recently been employed by the people of that city. This makes the second nurse that Newbern has employed, the first being Miss Gibbs, a Red Cross visiting nurse. So satisfactory and helpful has been the work of Miss Gibbs among the white people, especially her work in the schools, that the city is moved to employ a colored nurse for bettering the health conditions of her colored people.

Prof. H. B. Smith, superintendent of the Newbern Public Schools, writes to Dr. G. M. Cooper, of the State Board of Health, the following: 2/24/16.

"The colored people here acted on the suggestion you made to them the day you were here, and raised the money for a nurse. We have engaged one, and she goes to work the first of March. A graduate nurse is to fill the position, and I am assured that she is a good one. She will work under the direction of Miss Gibbs, our nurse for white people. New Bern now has two nurses employed, one for white and one for colored. I am greatly pleased with the excellent results we are getting from the employment of public nurses."

The State Board of Health makes the statement in this connection that this is another visiting nurse made possible by the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals. Her salary may not be paid with money raised from selling Red Cross Seals, but this was the means of employing the first nurse whose efficient work made evident the need of a second nurse.
